Company Name: VIRGINIA POWER, VERIZON, Comcast
Comments: I would support the placing of utility distribution lines underground. I understand that this process would disrupt traffic and raise the cost of the utilities. I also understand that as a homeowner I would probably be assessed some portion of the cost, and would probably have to pay for the connections to my home. But I believe that in the end my home would endure fewer utility disruptions, and my neighborhood would lose the unsightly poles and wires thus raising the value of my home. I would love to look out my windows and not see the utility pole and lines in front of my home.
